CONVICTION AGAINST UMW IS DISMISSED

Judge Goldsborough Takes Under Consideration Request to End Anti-Strike Injunction

PLEA IS A SURPRISE

Washington, May 18—(AP)—The civil contempt conviction against John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers was dismissed today at the government's request.

Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough, however, took under consideration a government request to end the anti-strike injunction against Lewis and the union.

Goldsborough said the plea for dropping the injunction came as a surprise and he was not prepared to rule on it immediately.

Goldsborough added he is not convinced that there is no danger of a new coal strike.

The injunction was issued by Goldsborough April 21. It replaced a temporary restraining order of April 8.

It was obtained under the Taft-Hartley act and a six weeks coal strike, touched off by a dispute over pensions for elderly miners.

In seeking the dismissals, Attorney General Tom Clark informed the court the government felt the pension dispute is being handled appropriately, that the miners are at work and the "public interest is secure."

Lewis and the union were convicted of both civil and criminal contempt for failing to obey a restraining order against a work stoppage.

Lewis was fined $20,000 and the union $1,400,000 on the criminal contempt conviction, but any penalty on civil contempt was held in abeyance.

In seeking dismissal of the anti-strike order, Clark told Judge T. Alan Goldsborough the purposes of the government's actions against the miners—resumption of normal production in the mines—has been achieved.

Clark said therefore the government saw no need for continuing the 80-day injunction which Judge Goldsborough issued April 21.

The court action came as Lewis and the soft coal operators began talks on a new contract to replace the present agreement expiring June 30.

Apparently, the court moves are aimed at removing the government from any connection with the contract negotiations.

The six-weeks-long work stoppage started March 15 in a dispute over pensions for retired miners.

Lewis and Senator Bridges (R-NH) drew up a compromise providing $100 monthly payments for union members 62 years old or with 20 years' service. Lewis is the union's representative on the miners welfare fund and Bridges is the neutral trustee.

The Lewis-Bridges plan was promptly challenged by Ezra Van Horn, operators' trustee. He sued to block payments contending it was an illegal scheme.

The pension controversy may crop up in the contract negotiations starting today between Lewis and the mine owners.

Speed Output Of Atomic Weapons

Washington, May 18—(AP)—The United States geared up today for production of new atomic weapons whose deadly power is this nation's secret.

This much is known—that whatever their form or dimensions they represent "very substantial progress" in harnessing nature's forces to instruments of terrible destruction.

Those were the words used by the White House yesterday in announcing successful completion of a new series of tests of "three atomic weapons, each of improved design" at Eniwetok island in the far Pacific.

Speculation mounted over what the new weapons may be. Whatever they are—guided missiles, radioactive clouds, an improved bomb or whatnot—the White House announcement indicated no time is being lost in putting them into production.

Dairy Groups Urge Congress To Keep Some Taxes on Oleo

Washington, May 18—(AP)—A dairy organization today urged congress to keep at least some taxes on oleomargarine—but repeal the import duty on foreign oleo.

Secretary Charles W. Holman of the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation said it would be unfair to give the oleo industry "broad opportunities to masquerade its product as butter" while being protected from foreign competition.

In a prepared statement he suggested leaving the 10-cent-a-pound tax on colored oleo, cutting federal tax on whole-cream, retailers and manufacturers to one dollar a year, and repealing only the quarter-cent-a-pound tax on the uncolored product.

He testified before the senate finance committee in opposition to the house-approved measure to repeal all federal taxes on the bit-

Meat Strike Peace Efforts Collapse As Soft Coal And Rail Contract Talks Resume

Meat strike peace efforts collapsed today, at least temporarily. Meanwhile railroad and soft coal contract talks began.

In the automotive industry, where violence marked the deadlocked Chrysler strike, a strike of 225,000 General Motors workers loomed ahead—possibly within two weeks.

These were the major developments: Meat—CIO meat handlers turned down a Swift & Company proposal for ending the 62-day-old meat strike. As a result, there was a drop in hopes for a quick settlement. New negotiations, begun in Chicago yesterday, broke off early today without announcement of any resumption.

The Swift suggestion included offer of a nine cent hourly wage boost, 20 cents below what the CIO United Packinghouse Workers have asked.

The union president, Ralph Helstein, based the union rejection on a part of the Swift proposal which he said would let the company discharge any striking employee. He did not comment on the wage issue.

Coal—John L. Lewis and the soft coal operators began outlining their stands in their annual contract battle. They were in Washington to bargain on an agreement replacing their contract which expires June 30.

The union suggestion included offer of a nine cent hourly wage boost, 20 cents below what the CIO United Packinghouse Workers have asked.

Lewis' United Mine Workers are prepared to talk about 11 issues, including wages. Hard coal contract talks were postponed until May 27 in Philadelphia.

Railroad—Railroad labor and management spokesmen resumed negotiations in Washington. They are trying to settle the wage dispute that nearly tied up the nation's transportation system a week ago.

Federal seizure prevented the strike set for May 11, but did not settle the dispute over wages and working rules.

Tomorrow Federal Justice T. Alan Goldsborough is to act on a plea for a continued order to keep the rail union members on the job. The government's anti-strike order against locomotive engineers, firemen and engineers, and switchmen is good until tomorrow. If the judge does not extend the order, they may strike.

Auto—Michigan state police patrolled one of the strike-bound Chrysler plants near Detroit after yesterday's flurry of picket line violence in the six-day old Chrysler dispute. No moves toward ending the strike were reported.

The CIO United Auto Workers, meanwhile, threatened General Motors with a second postwar strike of 225,000 at 90 GM plants on the second.

Jaycees Grateful For Fine Cooperation On Fund Drive

The Warren Junior Chamber of Commerce extends its appreciation to everyone who helped to make Friday and Saturday's Cancer Tag Sale the fine success that it was. The generosity of the local donors was responsible for the most successful tag sale ever conducted in Warren and the more than $2000 collected very nearly put the county over the top in its cancer campaign.

Jaycees wish to thank the Red Jacket management for the use of its sound system, Station WNAE for its truck and Morrie Kintner for his signs, W. A. Walker and the Times-Mirror for the fine publicity, Chester Allen for the use of the West Penn Oil Company office as headquarters, and the 59 members of the PAK and other youth organizations who acted as street salesmen.

Patrick Feronti, John O'Neill, Janice Hicks, Marlene Richardson, Marion Yeager, Beverly Chapman, Nan Hetherington, Connie Corbran, Patty Graebner, Pat Bloomquist, Barbara Van Blois, Patricia Duffy, Ruth Davis and Nancy Whipple.

The Junior Chamber committee in charge of the Cancer Tag Day was under the chairmanship of Richard Meacham and was composed of the following members: David Levine, William Farin, William Lutz, Jr., H. G. Forbes, Alex Fink, Frank Dobson, Kenneth Patten, and Royce Black.

The president of the milk producers group, John Brandt, told the committee in a statement the repeal bill would "legalize a raid by one industry upon the established good will and on the market of another industry."

He accused oleo-makers of "deliberate and misleading propaganda" and said that if the bill passes "uncolored oleo will disappear from the markets" to be replaced by the higher-priced colored product.

"When and if the 'right to yellow margarine' is won," Brandt said, "the consumer will pay for the victory through the nose."

Passage of the repeal measure "in some form" was predicted before the committee session by Chairman Millikin (R-Colo.). Hearings were due to end today with testimony from 16 opponents of the measure.

STALIN SAYS WALLACE HAS PEACE PLAN

Soviet Prime Minister Willing To Negotiate On Basis of Candidate's "Open Letter"

WHITE HOUSE SILENT

Washington, May 18—(AP)—The White House remained silent today on Premier Stalin's acceptance of Henry A. Wallace's proposal for a discussion of differences between the United States and the Soviet Union.

President Truman's Press Secretary, Charles G. Ross, anticipated a question concerning the Moscow radio broadcast when he met with newsmen this morning.

"The question is - - -" Ross began.

"The Stalin-to-Wallace - - -" a reporter began.

"The answer is no comment," Ross said, and that ended it.

The nature of Stalin's proposals for discussions with the United States gave support to American officials' suspicions that Russia is pressing a "peace offensive" for diplomatic and propaganda advantage.

Since V-E Day the United States and Russia have been at odds on almost every one of the issues Stalin listed in endorsing Henry Wallace's "open letter" of May 11 as a "concrete program" for possible settlement of differences.

Moscow, May 18—(AP)—Prime Minister Stalin says Russia is willing, if the United States is, to accept Henry A. Wallace's recent "open letter" to him as the foundation for peaceful settlement of Soviet-American quarrels.

In a statement dated yesterday and released by the Soviet press department last night, Stalin replied to proposals made by Wallace at a political rally in New York a week ago today.

"I do not know," Stalin said, in his first public pronouncement in more than a month, "whether the United States government approves of Mr. Wallace's program as a basis for agreement between the U. S. S. R. and the United States."

"As far as the government of the U. S. S. R. is concerned, it considers that Mr. Wallace's program should serve as a good and fruitful basis for such an agreement and for the development of international cooperation."

In Washington, the White House and the state department withheld official comment.

(Wallace said in San Francisco he was "very much surprised" that Stalin had answered him, but added: "If I have done anything that moves the world forward toward peace, I feel that my campaign will have been a success.")

Stalin gave a concise summary of Wallace's proposals, which he said "are known to everybody," listing them as follows:

1. "A general reduction of armaments and prohibition of atomic weapons.

2. "Conclusion of peace treaties with Germany and Japan and the question of evacuation of troops from these countries.

3. "Evacuation of troops from China and Korea.

4. "Respect for the sovereignty of individual countries and non-interference in their domestic affairs.

5. "The inadmissibility of military bases in member countries of the United Nations.

6. "World development of international trade excluding any sort of discrimination.

7. "In the framework of the United Nations, assistance to and economic restoration of countries which suffered from the war.

8. "Defense of democracy and insuring of civil rights in all countries; and so on."

(These are the six objectives toward which Wallace, in his "open letter" said the United States and Russia must take definite, decisive steps.)

1. "General reduction of armaments—outlining all methods of mass destruction.

2. "Stopping the export of weapons by any nation to any other nation.

3. "The resumption, of unrestricted trade (except for goods related to war) between the two countries.

4. "The free movement of citizens, students and newspapermen between and within the two countries.

5. "The resumption of free exchange of scientific information and scientific material between the two nations.

6. "The re-establishment of a re-integrated UNRRA or the constitution of some other United Nations agency for the distribution of international relief."

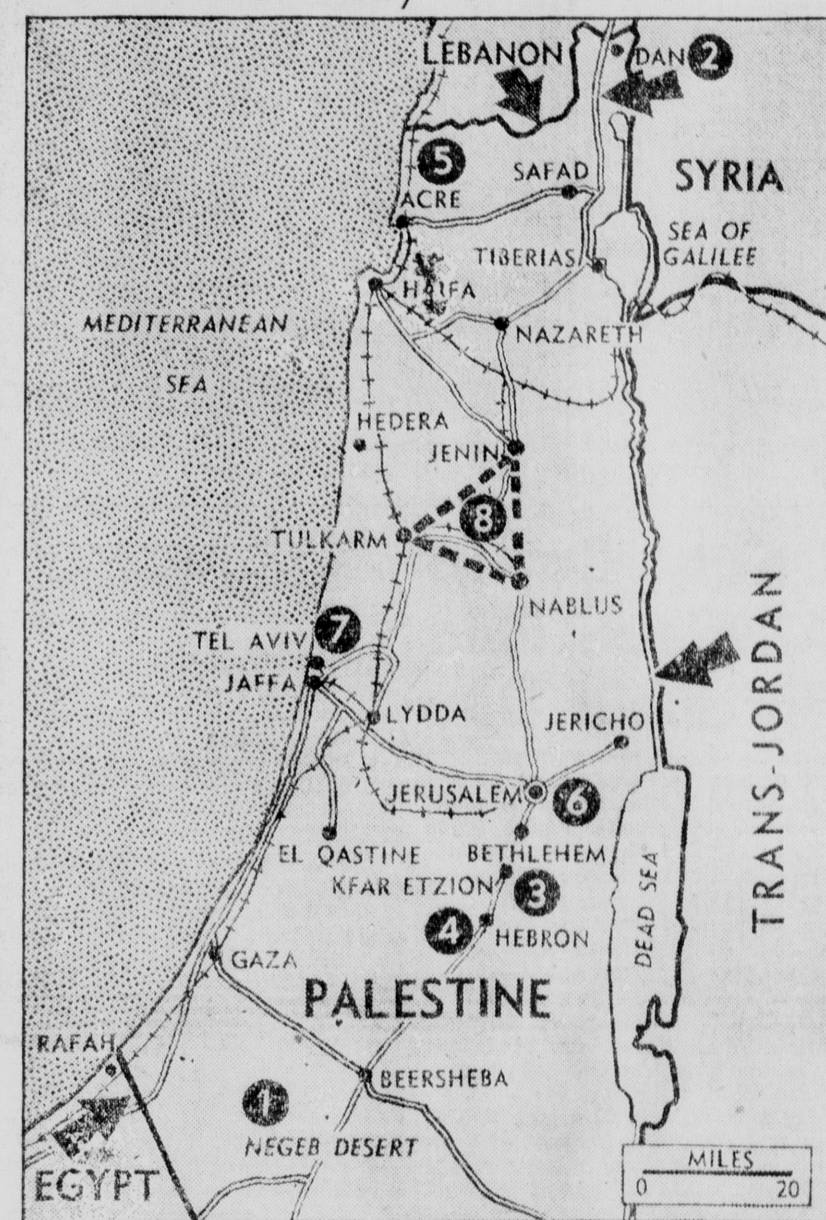

Boys Town, Neb., May 18—(AP)—The body of the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Edward J. Flanagan will be buried within the grounds of the "Little Town for Men" which he founded.

In fulfillment of the famous priest's request, the Rev. Edmund C. Walsh, acting director of Boys Town, said Father Flanagan would be buried in the north-east corner of the Dowd Memorial Chapel.

"He wanted to be near his boys and where they could visit him at any time," the Rev. Walsh said.

Jews Claim Ancient Town of Acre Has Surrendered Unconditionally

Arabs Ready for Invasion

As Jews proclaimed birth of Israel, armies of five Arab states were poised on borders of Palestine as shown by arrows. Egyptian troops were reported probing 50 miles deep into Negev Desert (1) and Haganah reported Syrian troops began attack on Dan (2). Jews admitted defeat at Kfar Etzion (3), which Palestine Arabs attacked with artillery and tank support. Arab legionnaires combed the hills surrounding Hebron (4), apparently clearing way for Egyptian invasion. Haganah said Jews captured Acre (5) and most of new Jerusalem (6) in new attacks, as Jews began receiving badly needed war supplies at Tel Aviv (7) when British blockade withdrew. The largest Arab stronghold within Palestine is the famed "Terror Triangle" (8).

Firm United Nations Action In Palestine Gains Support

Lake Success, May 18—(AP)—Belgium and the Soviet Ukraine joined with the United States and Russia today in demanding firm United Nations action to stop the war in Palestine.

None of the other members of the 11-nation Security Council was ready to debate the issue.

Alexandre Parodi of France, this month's council president, said in view of this the Council would have to begin discussing a series of questions which the United States proposed should be sent to the parties involved in the fighting.

The specific proposal before the Council is a United States resolution proposing that Jews and Arabs be ordered to stop their war within 36 hours after adoption of the resolution.

Vassily A. Tarasenko, delegate for the Soviet Ukraine, repeated arguments made yesterday by Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko that the Council should act at once on the American proposal.

"A fight is going on in Palestine," Tarasenko said, "a fight which amounts to war."

The reluctance of the other delegates to debate the U. S. proposal indicated it may run into serious difficulties despite the rare instance of U. S.-Soviet agreement.

In debate on the proposed questionnaires, Mahmoud Fawzi Bey of Egypt objected to use of the term "provisional government of Israel" in the U. S. draft. He said the Council had no right to speak of the provisional government.

Aubrey Evan, Jewish agency representative, replied that the government of Israel claims and operates in areas assigned to it under the partition plan approved by the U. N. Assembly Nov. 29, 1947. Evan actually represents the new Tel Aviv regime now although he has not raised the issue of recognition by presenting Israel credentials.

British Delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan said the question of mentioning the provisional government caused him some embarrassment since his government has not recognized the state of Israel. He said he wanted to make it clear there had been no change in Britain's position with reference to recognition of the Jewish government.

1. "General reduction of armaments—outlining all methods of mass destruction.

2. "Stopping the export of weapons by any nation to any other nation.

3. "The resumption, of unrestricted trade (except for goods related to war) between the two countries.

4. "The free movement of citizens, students and newspapermen between and within the two countries.

HAGANAH SAYS IT HAS SOME 4,000 ARABS TRAPPED IN OLD WALL CITY NORTH OF HAIFA

Tel Aviv, Israel, May 18—(AP)—Jewish army sources said the ancient all-Arab town of Acre surrendered unconditionally early today after a 72-hour battle in the streets.

Haganah said it had some 4,000 Arabs trapped in the old wall city, eight miles north of the Jewish port of Haifa. The Haganah fighters claimed control of the highway through the city, a link to Jewish settlements in the north.

Acre is just outside the area of Palestine designated as Jewish under the United Nations partition plan.

To the east, Jewish sources in Haifa declared 500 Arabs were drowned when Jews opened a dam and flooded plain lands south of the Sea of Galilee.

Tel Aviv was raided by light bombers just after dawn, for the fourth straight day. The 45-minute attack was the longest yet upon the city. The Jews said they shot down one of the attacking planes and damaged another.

Haganah said one of the attacking pilots crash-landed near Rehovot, 15 miles southeast of Tel Aviv, and was taken into custody by two gird soldiers. They said the pilot identified himself as an Egyptian air force pilot officer.

In the first day's air raids Saturday, the Jews also had claimed capture of an Egyptian pilot.

The Haifa informant said Arab armored columns were trapped by the rushing dam waters near Dajanya on the southern tip of the Sea of Galilee. The plain lies below sea level in the Jordan valley along the Palestine-Trans-Jordan frontier.

The source said Arab tanks became mired and heavy equipment was trapped by the swirling waters.

From atop the historic hill from which Napoleon once tried unsuccessfully to storm Acre, Jewish commandos swooped down upon the ancient city and penned up an estimated 4,000 Arabs, Haganah said.

Under a protective curtain of fire from the hilltop, a Jewish convoy pushed through the outskirts of the coastal town. The vehicles were hit by only a few bullets. A Jewish commander said it was the first convoy to get through in two months.

The commander said the Jews now hold both sides of the highway through Acre and have smashed into and captured new districts.

He said women and children of the Jewish settlements along the Lebanese frontier have been evacuated. Other villages along the highway have been neutralized, he said.

Haganah announced yesterday that Arabs had begun a massed attack against the Jewish quarter of Jerusalem's old walled city. The U. N. consular truck commission was reported to have hastened to Amman, Trans-Jordan, for talks with King Abdullah.

(A pooled dispatch from American correspondents in the Holy City yesterday said virtually all the hands of the Jews after 51 hours of furious street fighting that followed Friday's withdrawal of the British. The Jewish quarter of Jerusalem's old walled city, Mukden, metropolis of the rich, Japanese-developed territory, hundreds of tons of seed will follow.

Mukden's immediate area of about six million acres is struggling to combat the hunger of about 10,000,000 persons, the relief office said. This means about 29 per cent of Manchuria's population has been crowded into about five per cent of the sprawling territory.

(In Cairo, the Arab higher executive said the Jewish agency had authorized the surrender of Jews in the old city of Jerusalem to the Arab volunteers.

The office said the surrender terms "have been accepted by the old city Jews."

Jerusalem Is Being Shelled By Arab Guns

(The following dispatch on the fighting in Jerusalem was received today through U. S. communications. Normal communication between Jerusalem and the United States has been cut off since Friday. This dispatch is the combined work of AP Correspondent Carter L. Davidson and other American and British correspondents in Jerusalem. It was made available by the navy on a pooled basis.)

Jerusalem, May 17—(Delayed)—(AP)—The Arabs cannonaded the central thoroughfares of new Jerusalem today, killing two and injuring 33—Jews. Both sides consolidated their positions inside the walled old city.

With no indications beyond a surmise that the Arabs and Jews were staking everything upon taking or holding the clustered houses between the Zion gate and the wailing wall enclosure, the United Nations truce commission made another move to restore the cease fire convention.

Assisted by consuls of other western powers including Italy, and by the Franciscan Ecclesiastical head, the Security Council's peace makers established contact with both sides in a new truce effort.

The Arabs stated, according to a Jewish Agency spokesman, that they are ready to refrain from using mortars to obviate damaging the Holy Land places, but would not accept a cease fire. The Jews said they could only agree to a full cease fire, but refused the proposal to eliminate mortars on the ground they must be allowed every means of defense.

Fishermen's Paradise To Open May 21

Harrisburg—Pennsylvania's famous "Fisherman's Paradise" located on Spring Creek near Bellefonte in Center County will be open for the 1948 season from Friday, May 21 and to July 24 inclusive except Sundays when the Paradise is closed.

Fishing will officially begin at 6:00 a. m., Eastern Standard Time.

There is no special license required to fish the "Paradise," fishermen 16 years and over must have a resident fisherman's license and must personally register in and out. Anglers are allowed to fish the project at any time during the season and while the thrill of catching big fish will be the order of the day, only one fish may be killed in any single day visit. This new regulation was made necessary because of the ever increasing cost of operating this project. The fisherman is restricted to the use of artificial hair or feather flies or lures with barbless hooks or hooks from which the barb has been removed. Spoons, spinners or swivels are prohibited and wading the stream, for any purpose, is not permitted. Fish caught must be returned to the water and assistance in hooking or landing fish is not allowed.

Only fish ten inches or longer taken from the large stream may be killed while the size limit on the adjoining small stream is seven inches.

"Fisherman's Paradise" is the fisherman's dream come true. Here under exacting restrictions, one may tie into the largest trout, brook, brown or rainbow to be found anywhere in Pennsylvania. Barbless hook, no wading, no assistance and the thrill of a lifetime are realized.

The rules and regulations will be prominently posted and each angler will be given a printed card bearing these regulations. There can be no mistake or reason for any type of violation.

Local Radio Amateurs Plan For Field Day

Fourteen of the local radio amateurs met the other evening at the home of Kenneth Brown, West street, for the purpose of discussing and making arrangements for participation in the annual field day to be held over the week end of June 12th-13th, in conjunction with other radio amateur groups, via radio, throughout the country.

Various committees were appointed to arrange for operation schedule, procurement of equipment, food, publicity, etc.

This is an annual event and is conducted for the purpose of testing the emergency readiness of communication on equipment and personnel in the event of failure of regular communication channels.

A notable example of the operation of such emergency groups was that offered by the radio during the recent Port Arthur, Texas disaster for two days, until regular communications were restored.

Also the Maine forest fires and similar catastrophes. The local groups services will be available in the event of floods, disasters, or other emergencies and is correlated with the activities of the local Red Cross disaster committee.

Operation on this year will be from the Sheffield Fire Tower and two telephone and telegraph transmitters will be operated simultaneously. All equipment will be powered from mobile and gasoline driven generators. Operation will be continuous for 48 hours starting at 4 p. m. local time June 12th.

After the meeting a lunch was served by Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Passenger, of Bradford. The rest of the evening was of a social nature and was enjoyed by all.

Local Grange Honors Dead Of Past Year

Twelve members of Warren Grange No. 1025, deceased during 1948, were honored in the annual memorial service held in conjunction with the regular meeting conducted by Master Martin McNulty on Monday evening.

They were Miss Annine Tellman, Mrs. Florence Frantz, Mrs. Clara Campbell, Mrs. Eunice Schuler, Mrs. Angie Smith, Mrs. Mary Embler, G. Walter Irwin, Clara Bergner, John Laurence, Christian Mack, Edward Johnson, and Samuel Hansen.

The memorial service was opened with a song, "Day Is Dying in the West," by the entire Grange, followed by the reading of the 23rd Psalm, roll call of deceased members and decoration of the altar by Mrs. Lorena See and Mrs. Gertrude Johnson, with Mrs. Olga Petersen and Miss Helen Honhart as individual flower bearers; song "Rainbow At Sunset," by the Grange; The Lord's Prayer, and Benediction by the chaplain, Mrs. Gertrude Johnson.

Youngsville School Pupils Pay Tribute

Youngsville, May 18 — As has been customary for many years, the Youngsville school conducted again this spring its memorial service honoring the benefactors who many years ago helped in building of the White Memorial High School and the Currie Industrial School building.

The tribute was held Friday afternoon in the high school auditorium, with pupils, faculty members and friends attending. Lewis Dove, president of the Student Council, gave an address in which he paid tribute to J. E. White, whose large gift to the local school fund was a memorial to his son, who was killed in an accident, and to the Currie family, who made plans for industrial education in home economics, shop and agriculture being taught in Youngsville schools.

At this time Raymond Barton, commander of the American Legion Halgren-Wilcox Post of Youngsville, presented the Legion award to the lad in the junior high school, 9th grade, who is considered by classmates and faculty to be outstanding in character, school loyalty and work.

The award was given to John Oldenski. A similar award was presented to Katherine Dunkle as the girl in the 8th grade who had these characteristics. This award, which is given by the American Legion Auxiliary, was presented by Mrs. Warren Jones, chairman of the Auxiliary's department of "Americanism". Two numbers were played by the school band.

Officers of the Student Council then carried two large wreaths presented by the school faculty and the two baskets of flowers presented from the school pupils to the cemetery where they were placed on the graves of members of the families of the benefactors.

Fishermen's Paradise To Open May 21

Harrisburg—Pennsylvania's famous "Fisherman's Paradise" located on Spring Creek near Bellefonte in Center County will be open for the 1948 season from Friday, May 21 and to July 24 inclusive, except Sundays when the Paradise is closed.

Fishing will officially begin at 8:00 a. m., Eastern Standard Time.

There is no special license required to fish the "Paradise", fishermen 16 years and over must have a resident fisherman's license and must personally register in and out. Anglers are allowed to visit the project five times during the season and while the thrill of catching big fish will be the order of the day, only one fish may be killed in any single day visit. This new regulation was made necessary because of the ever increasing cost of operating this Project. The fisherman is restricted to the use of artificial hair or feather flies or lures with barbless hooks or hooks from which the barb has been removed. Spoons, spinners or swivels are prohibited and wading the stream, for any purpose, is not permitted. Fish caught must be returned to the water and assistance in hooking or landing fish is not allowed.

Only fish ten inches or longer taken from the large stream may be killed while the size limit on the adjoining small stream is seven inches.

"Fisherman's Paradise" is the fisherman's dream come true. Here under exacting restrictions, one may take into the largest trout stream in the world, the Paradise, and find anywhere in Pennsylvania. Barbless hook, no wading, no assistance and the thrills of a lifetime are realized.

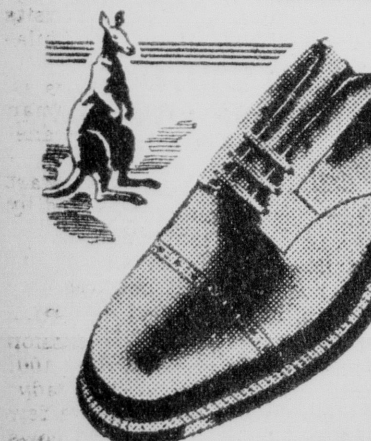

The rules and regulations will be prominently posted and each angler will be given a printed card bearing these regulations. There can be no mistake or reason for any type of violation.

Local Radio Amateurs Plan For Field Day

Fourteen of the local radio amateurs met the other evening at the home of Kenneth Brown, West street, for the purpose of discussing and making arrangements for participation in the annual field day to be held over the week end of June 12th-13th, in conjunction with other radio amateur groups, via radio, throughout the country.

Various committees were appointed to arrange for operation schedule, procurement of equipment, food, publicity, etc.

This is an annual event and is conducted for the purpose of testing the emergency readiness of communication equipment and personnel in the event of failure of regular communication channels.

Also the Maine forest fires and similar catastrophes. The local groups services will be available in the event of floods, disasters, or other emergencies, and is correlated with the activities of the local Red Cross disaster committee.

Operation this year will be from the Sheffield Fire Tower and two telephone and telegraph transmitters will be operated simultaneously.

All equipment will be powered from mobile and gasoline driven generators. Operation will be continuous for 48 hours, starting at 4 p. m. local time June 12th.

After the meeting a lunch was served by Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Passenger, of Bradford. The rest of the evening was of a social nature and was enjoyed by all.

UNCLE SAM "STRIKE BREAKER"

"If the government is going to step in as a strike-breaking agency," says the president of the Switchmen's Union of North America, "it's about time that the American people start thinking of what they are going to do for the American working man deprived of his bargaining weapon."

That is an imposing generality, but it doesn't square with reality. And it doesn't justify a railroad strike, as it apparently was meant to, says James Thrasher in an NEA editorial.

From the practical viewpoint, there is no such composite creature as "the American working man," any more than there is a similar one called "the American employer." Even in the restricted sense of the working man as a union member, the generality does not apply.

Union members have varying responsibilities, just as they have varying jobs and wages.

It may not injure the public for the workers in a pottery factory or even an automobile factory to go on strike and stay out until they get what they want. It does injure the public if union leaders, in industry-wide bargaining, shut down all the coal mines or all the steel mills or all the railroads to enforce their demands.

In the case of the railroads, the government has entered the picture as what the switchmen's president chooses to call "a strike-breaking agency." It did so because, as President Truman rightly said, "a strike on our railroads would be a nationwide tragedy, with worldwide repercussions," and because, as Justice Goldsborough said, such a strike would cause the country "to suffer irreparable injury for which it has no adequate remedy at law."

It should be pointed out that the owners of these basic industries and activities have the same responsibilities as their organized employees. They have no right, by industry-wide agreement, to shut down all the railroads or steel mills or coal mines.

We are sure that the threat of a railroad strike started the American people thinking, but not about what they were going to do for the American working man deprived of his bargaining weapon. We imagine that many of them were thinking how dangerous that weapon would be if it could not be silenced, in a crisis, by the government's "strike-breaking" power.

Even the "American working man" must have considered what such a strike could mean—paralysis of the nation's commerce, tens of millions unemployed, severe damage to our foreign policy, shortages, sky-rocketing prices and, if the strike lasted long enough, actual hardship and danger to health.

It may be theoretically wrong to limit the use of the "bargaining weapon" and to force the government into the artificial process of seizure. But the realities are still there to be faced.

If present ways of preventing paralyzing strikes are bad, then good ways must be found. We don't know what they will be—a ban on industry-wide bargaining (which wouldn't halt a railroad tie-up), compulsory arbitration with settlements enforceable by law, or something not yet proposed.

There will be objections to any such solution. But so long as the workers in our basic industries are willing to gamble with the nation's health and welfare to get what they want, something must be done.

We hope that a cure can be found that is bland and effective. But if it turns out to be bitter, labor will have to realize that the prescription is the result of some union's self-indulgence.

WE PREDICT - -

We'd like to take this opportunity of going on record for all-out support of any project this new Junior Chamber of Commerce may take up and, at the same time, predict that the community is going to be more aware of these young citizens as time goes on. Already it has assumed leadership in two worth while efforts, the Cancer Fund Tag Days of which the public has heard so much; and the complete rejuvenation of Russell Field, of which they have modestly said little. Both tasks were there for the doing and while others sat and thought about them or made half-hearted gestures, the Jaycees went at them without batting an eyelash. Results are self evident in both instances. We offer our full support in whatever they choose to do next.

There ought to be some way to convince flies that human beings carry germs.

The world is full of a lot of people who can lead the way—but where to?

A. P. Foreign Affairs Analyst
The British monarchy is adapting itself with great facility to the social, political and economic changes of our new world—a really remarkable performance, considering its background of more than eleven centuries of pomp and splendor.

The royal family, more than ever before, is making itself a part of the every-day life of the country. Of course this democratic tendency isn't new to the present occupants of the throne and their children, for recent generations of sovereigns have displayed it. But it is more pronounced.

There are several reasons for this striking change. One naturally is hard times, for England's economic crisis is grave. However I believe the cause lies mainly in the politico-social upheaval which has swept wide reaches of our globe, including the British Isles.

Britain's Socialist government is leaving its stamp on John Bull's island. Even if times were easier economically, lavish display would be outside the code of Socialism—certainly no time for royalty to blind the eyes of its subjects with the glaze of the Kohinoor and Cullinan diamonds. And it's only fair to add that the kindly folk who make up the present royal family have never shown the slightest disposition to throw their weight about.

The change in the times is registered clearly by the nature of the two royal courts which have just been held at Buckingham Palace. They were the first since 1839, and they were shorn of much of the extreme formality and glitter of pre-war days. They were afternoon "parties" rather than the austere evening courts of the past.

No longer do the ambassadors have to appear in black silk knee-breeches with long silk stockings—a nightmare to Yankee representatives (especially those with bad legs) in the "good old days." Other regulations for dress of both men and women have been relaxed to an extreme which even permits the mere male to appear in a lounge suit if he so desires.

Women don't have to make the full courtesy—an acrobatic feat to which English ladies were reared but which always has been a trial and a tribulation to Americans. It's easy to be awkward in making the courtesy, and if the avoirdupois isn't well distributed a gal very easily can fall. Backing away from the presence of royalty—achieved by a side-and-a-half movement like an old side-wheel steamer getting into its berth—also has been a horror in the past.

IT HAPPENED IN WARREN 52 YEARS AGO

NOTE: This is the seventh in this series on Warren 52 years ago. We wouldn't believe some of these items were true if we hadn't actually "seen it in print" in the Warren Evening Mirror of 1896. The eighth appears tomorrow. Look for it.

The very youngest Sunday School children of Trinity church gave "Bluebeard" Saturday afternoon at 2:30 in the basement of the Rectory. Bluebeard, Harry Gilbert; Fatima, Hattie Steen; Fatima's mother, Constance Taylor; Sister Ann, Marguerite Cowan; Fatima's brothers, Harold Wood, John McClintock. "The scene where one brother strikes the wicked Bluebeard down while the other agily catches the fainting sister called forth hearty and generous applause."

—pretty good for tiny Sunday School tots!

Emperor William is looking at England again with anything but a smiling countenance. Those fellows over there would better get at it and fight it out. The sooner the better for the world.

—international thoughts from Warren 52 years ago.

"A little ill, then a little pill. The ill is gone, the PILL HAS WON!" so reads a much printed ad of 1896.

Pugilist Dacey of Saturday night's fake fight, left Sunday to "do" the sports of Salamanca. Mr. Dacey will long be remembered for his "winning" ways.

There has been a growing feeling among thinking people in Warren that there is much to be desired in bringing out the latent good existing in our public schools. The public responded heartily to an educational mass meeting which advocated a closer relationship between home and school and between parent and teacher. The result was the organization of the Mothers and Teachers Club of the Warren Schools, with Mrs. C. H. Noyes, pres. and a strong executive committee to assist her. A second meeting will be held at East street school Wednesday May 6, when a regular series of meetings will be entered upon. The duty of parents to the public schools and to the teachers in them was brought out clearly.

—this was before the National Parent-Teacher Association was begun.

"Come and get a pound of fine candies or a bushel of potatoes free with every dollar of cash trade," ask G. H. Strickland, Grocer.

Nearly everyone who is in the possession of a few feet of ground is experimenting in amateur horticulture.

—planting a garden?

Liverymen did a rushing business Sunday. The ideal spring day saw many riding their wheels to various places, but reported roads rough.

—rushing—about 5 miles an hour?

From 8 a. m. to 10 p. m., Saturday, an enticing series of bargains will be offered by S. S. and M. or Smart, Silberberg and Metzger, says the Warren Mirror on top position, page 1.

—stores stayed open as long as there was a customer.

The Gypsy camp on Glade Run was quite a resort for pleasure seekers Sunday afternoon. For a small fee the fortune teller would reveal the secret of the best places for trout fishing.

—that's a new angle for anglers.

Wanted—One first class pantaloen maker and one first class bushelman at once at Printz Bros.

—just learned that a bushelman remodels clothes.

Complaints of tramps begging and insulting ladies when their requests were refused . . . No less than 13 tramps called at one East Side home Saturday.

—must have been a good big mark on this house.

Special Attention Is Called To VFW Buddy Poppy Sale

On Friday and Saturday, May 21 and 22, Warren Post No. 661, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will conduct the 27th annual V. F. W. Buddy Poppy sale. On those days, every person in the community will have the opportunity to make a small payment on a debt which can never be paid in full.

"It is fitting," said Commander Cronberry, "that at this time of year when we traditionally pay reverence to those men who died fighting for us, we put our expression of gratitude into the form of deeds in honoring the dead by helping the living."

Commander Cronberry continued, "Now that we have successfully concluded the military part of the greatest war in history, we find ourselves confronted with the equally great problem of rehabilitation of men that participated in that war. Throughout the nation nearly ten thousand V. F. W. Posts are continually giving aid to veterans in need. This includes all veterans, not just those who are members of the V. F. W."

"Our state and national offices handle each year many thousands of veterans claims, readjustment and rehabilitation problems; and scores of other types of welfare projects. At Eaton Rapids, Mich., the V. F. W. National Home, the most outstanding of its type in the United States, cares for those orphans and widows of our war dead who have not been able to provide for themselves. Such a prodigious welfare program must have nationwide support; and it is from the proceeds of the annual Buddy Poppy sale that the V. F. W. is able to carry on this great work."

"It is to continue honoring the obligations to the comrades that the V. F. W. asks every citizen of Sykesville, May 18—(AP)—Ray Pifer said he found 3,000 young two-pound chickens slaughtered, apparently by some marauding animal, in a brooder on his poultry farm here yesterday.

Pifer said he believed the chickens were killed by a large horned owl, similar to one shot near here recently. He said the marauder evidently entered through window and backed the chickens into corners, where their mangled bodies were found in piles. The owner said he valued the chickens at $3,600.

Market Quotations

New York, May 18—(AP)—Heavy profit taking cramped the stock market's style again today but public demand was large enough to keep the price level on an even keel.

Rapid activity continued. The ticker tape reported numerous blocks of 1,000 and 2,000 shares of stock changed hands but with little variance in price as compared with the previous close.

A moderately weak spot was Chrysler Corp. The company's workers are out on strike. Others lower included U. S. steel, Bethlehem, General Motors International, at Harvester, Lockheed, General Electric, Dow Chemical, Santa Fe, and Gulf Oil.

School Patrol Arrives Home From Capital

Kane Republican: Outside of a few slight cases of car sickness, members of Kane County School Patrol apparently returned Sunday evening from their two-day tour of the nation's capital unscathed and little the worse for "wear and tear."

Sunday about 8 p. m. the party arrived safely in Clearfield and were engaged in satisfying appetites sharpened by the long trip. The 192 members of the county patrol and 25 adults who accompanied the youngsters on the journey arrived here at about midnight to day in four buses and nine cars.

The delegates from McKean failed to bring home any particular awards from the parade of 17,000 school patrol children down Washington's Constitution Ave., but they drew cheers and praise from the crowds lining the street as they marched in the attire of bright blue sweaters, clean white trousers and carrying red patrol flags.

The delegation Saturday was led by the school patrol's color guard and a Pennsylvania State Police car carrying Cpl. Joseph Hugger and Pvt. Robert Hauth, stationed at the barracks in Kane.

A five-mile march astride the wide avenue with a host of bands, color guards and floats caught up the holiday spirit in the huge gathering that jammed the street to watch the proceedings.

Following the parade which began at 10 a. m. and lasted until 1:30 p. m., the McKean County group had its picture taken near Washington's Monument and Rep. Robert F. Rich, of the 23rd Congressional District, was present to supply autographs for the youngsters.

TAVERN BRAWL ENDS IN MURDER CHARGE

Harrison said Kelley was charged by State Policeman Paul Lutz with beating the father of four to death with an axe after a brawl in a township tavern Saturday night. Beachley died in Somerset hospital of a fractured skull.

Pittsburgh, May 18—(AP)—Plans for another bus terminal in downtown Pittsburgh have been abandoned. The site of the proposed terminal has been sold to a Pittsburgh parking lot owner.

Chapter 17

AS the piercing shriek soared again Vince and Johanson dashed for the French doors opening onto the terrace. Outside they halted in their tracks and Johanson pushed his red hunting hat to the back of his head in surprise.

"What in Valhalla ails the woman?" he demanded.

Mrs. Lin Gook stood across from them on the far side of the swimming pool excavation. Evidently she had just returned from digging clams for her black sateen trousers were rolled to her knees and a bucket spewed its molluscan contents beside her. She emitted another anguished wail.

Above them a window clattered open and a startled gasp drifted across the sluggish air. Sonia, her face a horrified mask, was leaning from the casement. Now she pointed with a dramatic finger to the excavation.

"Ben the hole!" she said distinctly. "Ben the hole!"

And that was how they found Sophie Manley.

She lay face up in the deep end of the swimming pool. The rainwater had collected there in a shallow pool; in it, Sophie's corpse made a small black sodden island. Except for the businesslike arrow still quivering above her heart, her body was quite still.

They placed her on one of the wrought-iron benches that dotted the terrace. Vince gazed down at the woman who through the years had been capable of an unquenchable love for one man and, since two nights ago, an unquenching hate for another. Now emotions were forever dead for Sophie.

One of the mulberry windows quaked and they looked up to see Julia staring down at them. Before Vince could remove his coat and cover Sophie's face Julia sank from sight inside her room.

"She's fainted," Vince's throat went dry.

"Apparently." There was a queer ironic gleam in Johanson's eyes. "You'd better go up and see if she's O.K., Sonny. I'm going to conduct a personal inquiry right now. Warner, you stay here with the body."

VINCE took the outside stairway three steps at a time. Julia was lying just inside the window; he lifted her gently to the bed and began rubbing her wrists. In a moment her lids fluttered open.

"Vince, that was . . . was that . . . Aunt Sophie?"

"I'm afraid it was." Her hand felt so small in his, so helpless. Two large tears grew and slid down her cheeks. "How did it happen? How could it happen—we just got home!"

He put a pillow behind her head. "Can you remember when you returned?"

She glanced at the traveling clock on the rosewood nightstand beside her bed. "Twenty-five minutes ago—it was exactly four o'clock."

"Do you feel like talking? Could you tell me about your trip to town?"

"We went directly to town. First we went to the morticians where Aunt Sophie made the arrangements for Uncle Sam then we stopped at a bank. Aunt Sophie withdrew some money—about two hundred dollars—and John Bisset deposited a personal check. At the telegraph office we picked up a message from Mr. Topping. Uncle Sam's lawyer, saying he wouldn't be here for a week because he couldn't get plane reservations from Honolulu."

"Anything happen on the way home?" Vince encouraged.

"The car began totting up and we coasted directly into the garage. Aunt Sophie said she wanted to see how the rain had affected the new swimming pool. The Olmuds are building it for us you know. It's impossible to get skilled labor to come out this far now. John and I went in the front door."

The door was open and Johanson slipped in, carrying a small glass of brandy which he gave to Julia. "Drink this," he said. "It may help and I've got to ask you some questions."

Vince frowned in irritation.

"She's told me about their trip to town."

"That's fine, but it doesn't happen to be what I'm interested in right now." His tone was coldly efficient. "Julia, where is your Uncle Hugh?"

Julia's lips set in a white recalcitrant line; she didn't answer.

The investigator's mouth looked equally stubborn. "Don't you realize that other people's lives are in jeopardy? Your aunt was killed with one of Hugh's arrows a sharpened kitchen skewer was taped to the tip."

"He couldn't have done it. Hugh hasn't the mind for murder."

Johanson's pupils were like highly-polished agate as the words were torn from her. "What are you afraid of then? Tell us where he is."

"Aunt Sophie had him taken to the Olmuds' farm last night. She was afraid that if the police heard of his frailty he would be blamed for Uncle Sam's death and she knew he was incapable of such a heinous thing."

Vince put his hand over hers again. "Look here, Julia, hadn't you better tell us the truth about Hugh? Just what is wrong with him?"

"He isn't insane," she explained reluctantly. "He's—he's just childish."

Johanson's eyes were probing hers. "Has he always been that way?"

"No, it was the result of a brain injury when he was about nineteen."

"What happened to him?" Julia flushed. "You've got to believe me! Hugh is harmless. He was hurt in an accident—a fight over a Portuguese girl he wanted to marry. He lost his footing and hit his head against a cement balustrade. He's been to all the best brain surgeons but they say that some of the nerve centers are affected and that he'll always be this way—he'll never grow up."

"And the man who knocked him against the balustrade?" Johanson persisted.

The words came so faintly that Vince saw only the slow unwilling motion of Julia's lips. "Uncle Simon."

Development Of Air-Mail Pick-Up Traced By Writer

(Editor's note: This article was written by Marshall Mathis, local Post Office employee, as part of the local promotion of National Air Mail Week.)

While the idea of air transportation of mail is not new, the development of the non-stop pick up and delivery technique dates back less than a generation. To look back a little way to find what precedes modern operation we find that late in the nineteenth century mail had been transported across the English Channel by flight of free balloons. In the United States the first official flight of airmail was made by Earl Ovington on May 15, 1911, flying a ten mile course on Long Island. With this experience the U. S. Post Office Department, in connection with the Army, inaugurated the first regularly established scheduled run on May 15, 1918. The route was from New York City to Washington, D. C., with a stop at Philadelphia. The Army provided the planes and pilots. A picture of the first planes in service will be used on the cachet of the commemorative air mail covers, May 15th, this year. These ships were the Curtis J. N. 4, better known as the flying fraternity as "Jennys" and as a matter of local interest Slip King, Warren's veteran pilot-instructor, has one of these same Jennys safely stowed away in moth balls.

This Curtis J. N. 4 was a tandem seated bi-plane powered by a water-cooled OXO engine, commonly called the Ox. It had a radiator in front, as in automobile practice, and an eight cylinder "V" type engine which some optimistic engineers had rated at 80 horse power. The ship flew at speeds of about 65 miles per hour, being somewhat slower than the little Piper Trainers and more than thirty miles slower than our late Cubs. This ship was credited with requiring about two hours of repair work for each hour in the air, its plumbing system for cooling and its single magnet being fruitless sources of forced landings. It was originally planned as an Army training ship for War No. 1. Actually we used mostly ships of French or British design so these Jennys were surplus and available for air mail service.

In the early thirties Dr. Lytle S. Adams of Irwin, Pa., began experimenting with equipment which would make it possible to pick up and drop articles by means of aircraft in flight. In 1936 this equipment was demonstrated at the National Air Races at Cleveland, during which test containers of eggs, electric light bulbs, etc., were safely picked up from ground stations and later dropped without damage to the contents. The Postal Department was finally interested in this project and on May 14, 1939, the first flight was made by All American Aviation, inaugurating the first non-stop pick up and delivery of air mail. Warren, Pa., was among the cities to be served on the initial run and many collectors cherish first day covers from this flight. The present equipment is very similar to that used on the first flight differing only in the type of pick up pole and catcher installation. The ships used are Simson SR10, a high wing monoplane powered in a 285 H. P. Lycoming engine. This ship is very stable and reliable and is noted for its ruggedness and long life. The actual pick-up is accomplished at an air-speed of 115 to 120 miles per hour, and at the same operation a sack is dropped near the pick up area. The success of this service is in no small measure due to the skill and "Intestinal Fortitude" of the pilots who fly entirely V. F. F. (Visual Flight Regulations) without any navigational aids such as beacons, beams or markers. They rely solely on their knowledge of terrain and represent a combination of pilot, navigator and meteorologist. Their ability and willingness to fly in bad weather has brought us what is the fastest and best air mail service in the country. You are all invited to help the march of progress by using air mail at every opportunity and incidentally help yourself to the best mail service in the world.

UNCLE SAM "STRIKE BREAKER"

"If the government is going to step in as a strike-breaking agency," says the president of the Switchmen's Union of North America, "it's about time that the American people start thinking of what they are going to do for the American working man deprived of his bargaining weapon."

That is an imposing generality, but it doesn't square with reality. And it doesn't justify a railroad strike, as it apparently was meant to, says James Thrasher in an NEA editorial.

From the practical viewpoint, there is no such composite creature as "the American working man," any more than there is a similar one called "the American employer." Even in the restricted sense of the working man as a union member, the generality does not apply.

Union members have varying responsibilities, just as they have varying jobs and wages.

It may not injure the public for the workers in a pottery factory or even an automobile factory to go on strike and stay out until they get what they want. It does injure the public if union leaders, in industrywide bargaining, shut down all the coal mines or all the steel mills or all the railroads to enforce their demands.

In the case of the railroads, the government has entered the picture as what the switchmen's president chooses to call "a strike-breaking agency." It did so because, as President Truman rightly said, "a strike on our railroads would be a nationwide tragedy, with worldwide repercussions," and because, as Justice Goldsborough said, such a strike would cause the country "to suffer irreparable injury for which it has no adequate remedy at law."

It should be pointed out that the owners of these basic industries and activities have the same responsibilities as their organized employees. They have no right, by industry-wide agreement, to shut down all the railroads or steel mills or coal mines.

We are sure that the threat of a railroad strike started the American people thinking, but not about what they were going to do for the American working man deprived of his bargaining weapon. We imagine that many of them were thinking how dangerous that weapon would be if it could not be silenced, in a crisis, by the government's "strike-breaking" power.

Even the "American working man" must have considered what such a strike could mean—paralysis of the nation's commerce, tens of millions unemployed, severe damage to our foreign policy, shortages, sky-rocketing prices and, if the strike lasted long enough, actual hardship and danger to health.

It may be theoretically wrong to limit the use of the "bargaining weapon" and to force the government into the artificial process of seizure. But the realities are still there to be faced.

If present ways of preventing paralyzing strikes are bad, then good ways must be found. We don't know what they will be—a ban on industrywide bargaining (which wouldn't halt a railroad tie-up), compulsory arbitration with settlements enforceable by law, or something not yet proposed.

There will be objections to any such solution. But so long as the workers in our basic industries are willing to gamble with the nation's health and welfare to get what they want, something must be done.

We hope that a cure can be found that is bland and effective. But if it turns out to be bitter, labor will have to realize that the prescription is the result of some union's self-indulgence.

WE PREDICT - -

We'd like to take this opportunity of going on record for all-out support of any project this new Junior Chamber of Commerce may take up and, at the same time, predict that the community is going to be more aware of these young citizens as time goes on. Already it has assumed leadership in two worth while efforts, the Cancer Fund Tag Days of which the public has heard so much; and the complete rejuvenation of Russell Field, of which they have modestly said little. Both tasks were there for the doing and while others sat and thought about them or made half-hearted gestures, the Jaycees went at them without batting an eyelash. Results are self evident in both instances. We offer our full support in whatever they choose to do next.

There ought to be some way to convince flies that human beings carry germs.

The world is full of a lot of people who can lead the way—but where to?

At Least a Little Progress

MacKenzie's Column

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

A. P. Foreign Affairs Analyst

The British monarchy is adapting itself with great facility to the social, political and economic changes of our new world—a really remarkable performance, considering its background of more than eleven centuries of pomp and splendor.

The royal family, more than ever before, is making itself a part of the every-day life of the country. Of course this democratic tendency isn't new to the present occupants of the throne and their children, for recent generations of sovereignty have displayed it. But it is more pronounced.

There are several reasons for this striking change. One naturally is hard times, for England's economic crisis is grave. However I believe the cause lies mainly in the politico-social upheaval which has swept wide reaches of our globe, including the British Isles.

Britain's Socialist government is leaving its stamp on John Bull's island. Even if times were easier economically, lavish display would be outside the code of Socialism—certainly no time for royalty to blind the eyes of its subjects with the blaze of the Kohinoor and Cullinan diamonds. And it's only fair to add that the kindly folk who make up the present royal family have never shown the slightest disposition to throw their weight about.

The change in the times is registered clearly by the nature of the two royal courts which have just been held at Buckingham Palace. They were the first since 1939, and they were shorn of much of the extreme formality and glitter of pre-war days. They were afternoon "parties" rather than the austere evening courts of the past.

No longer do the ambassadors have to appear in black silken knee-breeches with long silk stockings—always a nightmare to Yankee representatives (especially those with bad legs) in the "good old days." Other regulations for dress of both men and women have been relaxed to an extreme which even permits the mere male to appear in a lounge suit if he so desires.

Women don't have to make the full curtsy—an acrobatic feat to which English ladies were reared but which always has been a trial and a tribulation to Americans. It's easy to be awkward in making the curtsy, and if the avoider isn't well distributed a gal very easily can fall. Backing away from the presence of royalty—achieved by a side-and-a-half movement like an old side-wheel steamer getting into its berth—also has been a horror in the past.

TEAIT HAPPENED IN WARREN
52 YEARS AGO

NOTE: This is the seventh in this series on Warren 52 years ago. We wouldn't believe some of these items were true if we hadn't actually "seen it in print" in the Warren Evening Mirror of 1896. The eighth appears tomorrow. Look for it.

The very youngest Sunday School children of Trinity church gave "Bluebeard" Saturday afternoon at 2:30 in the basement of the Rectory. Bluebeard, Harry Gilbert; Fatima, Hattie Steen; Fatima's mother, Constance Taylor; Sister Ann, Marguerite Cowan; Fatima's brothers, Harold Wood, John McClintock. "The scene where one brother strikes the wicked Bluebeard down while the other agily catches the fainting sister called forth hearty and generous applause."

—pretty good for tiny Sunday School tots!

Emperor William is looking at England again with anything but a smiling countenance. Those fellows over there would better get at it and fight it out. The sooner the better for the world.

—international thoughts from Warren 52 years ago.

"A little ill, then a little pill. The ill is gone, the PILL HAS WON!" so reads a much printed ad of 1896.

Pugilist Dacey of Saturday night's fake fight, left Sunday to "do" the sports of Salamanca. Mr. Dacey will long be remembered for his "winning" ways.

There has been a growing feeling among thinking people in Warren that there is much to be desired in bringing out the latent good existing in our public schools. The public responded heartily to an educational mass meeting which advocated a closer relationship between home and school and between parent and teacher. The result was the organization of the Mothers and Teachers Club of the Warren Schools, with Mrs. C. H. Noyes, pres. and a strong executive committee to assist her. A second meeting will be held at East street school Wednesday May 6, when a regular series of meetings will be entered upon. The duty of parents to the public schools and to the teachers in them was brought out clearly.

—this was before the National Parent-Teacher Association was begun.

"Come and get a pound of fine candies or a bushel of potatoes free with every dollar of cash trade," ask G. H. Strickland, Grocer.

Liverymen did a rushing business Sunday. The ideal spring day saw many riding their wheels to various places, but reported roads rough.

—rushing—about 5 miles an hour?

From 8 a. m. to 10 p. m., Saturday, an enticing series of bargains will be offered by S. S. and M. or Smart, Silberberg and Metzger, says the Warren Mirror on top position, page 1.

—stores stayed open as long as there was a customer.

The Gypsy camp on Glade Run was quite a resort for pleasure seekers Sunday afternoon. For a small fee the fortune teller would reveal the secret of the best places for trout fishing.

Music Groups Of Thelma Crandall Youngsville Give In Junior Recital Splendid Concerts At Conservatory

Youngsville, May 18—There was a good attendance for both evenings of music provided by music groups of the junior and senior high schools in the school auditorium on Thursday and Friday evening. Harvey Horn, music supervisor, was in charge.

The Thursday evening concert was opened by the senior mixed choir of over 50 voices, singing "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes" and "The Brook Forsaken," by Noble Cain; "Row, Row, Row," by Swift; "Prayer Ye the Lord Almighty," 17th century hymn arranged by Olds; "You Stole My Love," MacFarren; "Bridal Chorus" from "The Rose Maiden," Cowen.

The junior choir gave the next grouping and, like the others, won the enthusiastic approval of the audience. These numbers were "Spring Breezes," "Ribbon Dance," and "De Glendy Burk," all Martin arrangements; "Who Did," a college song arranged by White; "Beautiful Dreamer" by Foster and Bortmansky's "Cherubim Song," both arranged by Macfarren.

The large school orchestra appeared next in a varied offering. For the last three numbers, the orchestra was augmented by a group of first-year violin pupils of Arthur Briggs. These orchestral numbers were "Majestic Overture," "Meditation," by the Brahms; "DeLamater," "Dance of the Gnomes," Norman; "Springtime Waltz," Sauer; "Londonerry Air," Zamecnik; "All in Step March," Leland; and "The Garden Waltz," Monroe.

On Friday evening the fine senior girls' choir sang the following: "The Swan," Saint-Saens; "Three Blind Mice," (trio, Dolores Potter, Velma Arico and Norma Haight); "Lift Thine Eyes," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah"; "Old MacDonald Had a Farm," Howorth; "The Holy City," Adams, solos by Marilyn Loomis and Pauline Whaley.

Youngsville school is proud of its large band, which closed the very pleasing program with playing of these numbers: "Our Chief," March; "Kerry Dance," Molloy; "Waltz Fantasia—Under Tropical Skies," Olivadote; "Wagnerian March," arranged by Yoder; "Sweetest Story Ever Told," Tracy, sung as a soprano solo by Norma Haight, recent winner of high honor at the state forensics and music finals at Oil City, with band accompaniment; "Novelty—Where, Oh Where, Has My Little Tune Gone," arranged by Horn; "Marching Band," Kleffman; "National Anthem."

Second in the series of spring recitals at the Warren Conservatory of Music was heard Saturday evening, when Thelma Crandall Youngsville played her junior program, assisted by Joseph Gufrre, Jr., well known local tenor.

Miss Crandall began her program with a group of two numbers, the first by a Boston composer and the second by a son of the great Bach. Her first selection was played with a fine chord technique, rich in tone color, and her second piece displayed a sparkling touch. The second group of four numbers was well chosen to present a variety of contrasted moods, the player making each express its particular style and beauty. The numbers, "For Remembrance" and "The Legend" seemed most popular with the audience. Miss Crandall's last number, "Hungarian Rhapsody" in D minor by Fiedler, was by far the best piano number of the evening. This composition was given with beautiful tone, fine interpretation, and most satisfying power and brilliancy in the climaxes. Lillian Swanson, her former teacher, played orchestral parts at the second piano.

Mr. Gufrre sang two groups with beautiful quality of tone. He has a pure lyric tenor voice, which he has under fine control and uses excellent taste and expression suited to each song. Adelaide Swanson played a pleasing piano accompaniment for his numbers.

Another Success

The Warren Dragons and Bradford Owls scored another big hit in their third annual band exchange concert, playing to a capacity house in Beatty school gym on Friday evening. School Music Booster Club members were on hand to help with the seating and certainly ferreted out every available inch of space that could be utilized unless additional bleachers were added. The Beatty gym acoustics being what they are, we'd like to hear one of these exchanges played outdoors or in a real auditorium some time.

When the band let go in that Bobby Sox Suite, the sound came back from the rafters for a full five minutes. Joking aside, however, we're in thorough accord with the exchange plan. Both bands have a large membership and selection for the exchange provides a goal for the whole term's work. Rodney Schoch demonstrated in his half of the program a varied tempo, a concert band style, while Harry Summers carried through with a straight matching beat. Those who go on with their music will find this experience as they are obliged to play under different conductors and in groupings with which they are less familiar.

The combined Dragon-Owl band numbered 7 basses, 16 trombones, 23 trumpets, 36 clarinets, 12 horns, 4 baritone and enough other instruments to provide a total instrumentation of nearly 150. Pieces chosen for the program were those always popular with band audiences, the Red Mill offering being particularly pleasing and having two good trumpet solos. Shirley McKenyon, cornetist from Bradford, got a big hand for her solo, "Willow Echoes," written by an old-time Sousa man, Frank Simons. The Stars and Stripes number brought all the brasses to their feet and in addition featured a solo by Alice Hane, Bradford, and Elizabeth Dunham, Warren. Neil Swanson, popular local soloist, blew some lovely tones in the Cathedral excerpt.

WNAB carried the first half of the program through its regular facilities and the full concert on FM. Lelloy Schneck, program manager, served as announcer and Mike D'Angelo was at the amplifying controls. As an aside Mr. Schneck confided that the entire affair was as perfectly timed as if it had been rehearsed for weeks with a broadcast in mind and occupied 59 minutes, 30 seconds of the hour he had allotted it.

After the sign-off, Mr. Summers expressed his appreciation to the students and to all who had helped in any way to make the affair so successful.

Chapter 17
AS the piercing shriek soared again Vince and Johanson dashed for the French doors opening onto the terrace. Outside they halted in their trucks and Johanson pushed his red hunting hat to the back of his head in surprise.

"What in Valhalla ails the woman?" he demanded.
Mrs. Lin Cook stood across from them on the far side of the swimming pool excavation. Evidently she had just returned from digging clams for her black sateen trousers were rolled to her knees and a bucket spewed its molluscan contents beside her. She emitted another anguished wail.

Above them a window clattered open and a startled gasp drifted across the sluggish air. Sonia, her face a horrified mask, was leaning from the casement. Now she pointed with a dramatic finger to the excavation.

"Den the hole!" she said distinctly. "Den the hole!"
And that was how they found Sophie Manley.

She lay face up in the deep end of the swimming pool. The rainwater had collected there in a shallow pool; in it, Sophie's corpse made a small black sodden island. Except for the businesslike arrow still quivering above her heart, her body was quite still.

They placed her on one of the wrought-iron benches that dotted the terrace. Vince gazed down at the woman who through the years had been capable of an unquenchable love for one man and, since two nights ago, an unforgiving hate for another. Now emotions were forever dead for Sophie.

One of the mullioned windows squaked and they looked up to see Julia staring down at them. Before Vince could remove his coat and cover Sophie's face Julia sank from sight inside her room.

"She's fainted!" Vince's throat went dry.
"Apparently." There was a queer, ironical gleam in Johan-son's eyes. "You'd better go up and see if she's O.K., Bonnavy. I'm going to conduct a personal inquiry right now. Warner, you stay here with the body."

VINCE took the outside stairway three steps at a time. Julia was lying just inside the window; he lifted her gently to the bed and began rubbing her wrists, in a moment her lids fluttered open.

"Vince that was . . . was that . . . Aunt Sophie?"
"I'm afraid it was." Her hand felt so small in his, so helpless.

Two large tears grew and slid down her cheeks. "How did it happen? How could it happen!—we just got home!"
He put a pillow behind her head. "Can you remember when you returned?"

She glanced at the traveling clock on the rosewood nightstand beside her bed. "Twenty-five minutes ago—it was exactly four o'clock."

"Do you feel like talking? Could you tell me about your trip to town?"

"We went directly to town. First we went to the morticians where Aunt Sophie made the arrangements for Uncle Sim then we stopped at a bank. Aunt Sophie withdrew some money—about two hundred dollars—and John Bennett deposited a personal check. At the telegraph office we picked up a message from Mr. Topping. Uncle Sim's lawyer, saying he wouldn't be here for a week because he couldn't get plane reservations from Honolulu."

"Anything happen on the way home?" Vince encouraged.

"The car began acting up and we coasted directly into the garage. Aunt Sophie said she wanted to see how the rain had affected the new swimming pool. The Olands are building it for us, you know, it's impossible to get skilled labor to come out this far now. John and I went in the front door."

The door was open and Johanson slipped in, carrying a small glass of brandy which he gave to Julia. "Drink this," he said. "It may help and I've got to ask you some questions."

Vince frowned in irritation.

"She's told me about their trip to town."

"That's fine, but it doesn't happen to be what I'm interested in right now." His tone was coldly efficient. "Julia, where is your Uncle Hugh?"

Julia's lips set in a white recalcitrant line; she didn't answer. The investigator's mouth looked equally stubborn. "Don't you realize that other people's lives are in jeopardy? Your aunt was killed with one of Hugh's arrows, a sharpened kitchen skewer was taped to the tip."

"He couldn't have done it. Hugh hasn't the mind for murder!"
Johanson's pupils were like highly-polished agate as the words were torn from her. "What are you afraid of then? Tell us where he is."

"Aunt Sophie had him taken to the Olands' farm last night. She was afraid that if the police heard of his frailty he would be blamed for Uncle Sim's death and she knew he was incapable of such a heinous thing."

Vince put his hand over hers again. "Look here, Julia, hadn't you better tell us the truth about Hugh? Just what is wrong with him?"

"He isn't insane," she explained reluctantly. "He's—he's just childish."

Johanson's eyes were probing hers. "Has he always been that way?"

"No, it was the result of a brain injury when he was about nineteen."

"What happened to him?" Julia flushed. "You've got to believe me! Hugh is harmless! He was hurt in an accident—a fight over a Portuguese girl he wanted to marry. He lost his foot and hit his head against a cement balustrade. He's been to all the best brain surgeons but they say that some of the nerve centers are affected and that he'll always be this way—he'll never grow up."

"And the man who knocked him against the balustrade?" Johanson persisted.

The words came so faintly that Vince saw only the slow unwilling motion of Julia's lips. "Uncle Simon."

Development Of Air-Mail Pick-Up Traced By Writer

(Editor's note: This article was written by Marshall Mathis, local Post Office employee, as part of the local promotion of National Air Mail Week.)

While the idea of air transportation of mail is not new, the development of the non-stop pick up and delivery technique dates back less than a generation. To look back a little way to find what precedes modern operation we find that late in the nineteenth century mail had been transported across the English Channel by flight of free balloons. In the United States the first official flight of airmail was made by Earl Ovington in 1911, flying a ten mile course on Long Island. With this experience the U. S. Post Office Department, in connection with the Army, inaugurated the first regularly established scheduled run on May 15, 1918. The route was from New York City to Washington, D. C., with a stop at Philadelphia. The Army provided the planes and pilots. A picture of the first planes in service will be used on the cachet of the commemorative air mail covers, May 15th, this year. These ships were the Curtis J. N. 4, better known to the flying fraternity as "Jennys" and as a matter of local interest Slip King, Warren's veteran pilot-instructor, has one of these same Jennys safely stowed away in moth balls.

This Curtis J. N. 4 was a tandem seated bi-plane powered by a water-cooled OX5 engine, commonly called the Ox. It had a radiator in front, as in automobile practice, and an eight cylinder "V" type engine which some optimistic engineer had rated at 90 horse power. The ship flew at speeds of about 68 miles per hour, being somewhat slower than the little Piper Trainers and more than thirty miles slower than our late Cuba. This ship was credited with requiring about two hours of repair work for each hour in the air, its plumbing system for cooling and its single magneto being fruitful sources of forced landings. It was originally planned as an Army training ship for War No. 1. Actually we used mostly ships of French or British design so these Jennys were surplus and available for air mail service.

In the early thirties Dr. Lytle S. Adams of Irwin, Pa., began experimenting with equipment which would make it possible to pick up and drop articles by means of aircraft in flight. In 1936 this equipment was demonstrated at the National Air Races at Cleveland, during which test containers of eggs, electric light bulbs, etc., were safely picked up from ground stations and later dropped without damage to the contents. The Postal Department was finally interested in this project and on May 14, 1939, the first flight was made by All American Aviation, inaugurating the first non-stop pick up and delivery of air mail. Warren, Pa., was among the cities to be served on the initial run and many collectors cherish first day covers from this flight. The present equipment is very similar to that used on the first flight differing only in the type of pick up pole and catcher installation. The ships used are Stinson SR10, a high wing monoplane powered in a 265 H. P. Lycoming engine. This ship is very stable and reliable and is noted for its ruggedness and long life. The actual pick-up is accomplished at an air-speed of 115 to 120 miles per hour, and at the same operation a sack is dropped near the pick up area. The success of this service is in no small measure due to the skill and "Intestinal Fortitude" of the pilots who fly entirely V. F. R. (Visual Flight Regulations) without any navigational aids such as beacons, beams or markers. They rely solely on their knowledge of terrain and represent a combination of pilot, navigator and meteorologist. Their ability and willingness to fly in bad weather has brought us what is the fastest and best air mail service in the country. You are all invited to help the march of progress by using air mail at every opportunity and incidentally help yourself to the best mail service in the world.

Boston Braves, With Eleven Victories In 15 Starts Are Hottest Team In National

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
They may have about the wonderful St. Louis Cardinals pitching staff. They may gape in awe at the New York Giants' devastating power. They may admire and envy Brooklyn's depth with its youth and speed. The solid team in the National League, however, is the Boston Braves.

Boston is not in first place. The Cards hold that spot and the Giants are second. The Braves are third, but only because they got off to a miserable start. They dropped six of their first seven games.

Since then Boston has won 11 and lost four, the best record by

Let Weight and Body Roll to Right, Make Shift at Start of Downswing

Sixth of a series written for NEA Service
Winged Foot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y.—(NEA)—Perfecting the swing, remember what you have learned in the straight-wrist method and concentrate on the body, arms and feet.

These work as a unit. This is very important.

As you start the backswing, let your weight and body roll to the right.

If this is not done, all you have is your arms and club in the air, and no potential power for the downswing.

The correct position of the arms, club and the shoulder can be seen in the photograph at the left.

As you begin the downswing, let your weight move to the left in what we call a lateral shift.

At this point do not do anything with your hands or club.

Let them be pulled down naturally, by the forward motion of the hip.

The reason for this is that if the club is forced before the weight has been moved to the left side the face of the club will not hit the ball squarely.

After impact and in the follow through, all of the weight should be on the left foot with it pointing to the right. You will naturally finish your swing with your right foot on its toes.

Always make a high finish as illustrated in the photo at the right.

This will prevent you from pulling the ball as a batter does in baseball, which is correct for him, but not for you. Never pull in golf.

Comparing the swing to that of a baseball player, a golfer is always trying for a hit right through the middle of the diamond and over second base.

And, of course, keep your eyes on the ball.

National Forge Nine Opens Session Against Pleasantville

The National Forge baseball nine will blow the lid off the 1948 season tomorrow evening when the team battles Pleasantville on the Pleasantville diamond.

First home appearance for the Forge nine will be Memorial Day, May 30, with the crack Dormont Club of the Greater Pittsburgh League furnishing the opposition.

Also booked for a home appearance at Wilder field in Irvine on June 2 are the nationally known Homestead Grays.

These specialists are exempt from qualifying along with 19 players who finished in the first twenty last year behind Worsham; National Amateur Champion Robert H. (Skeet) Riegel and the host professional, Willie Hunter, former British amateur king.

Blix Donnelly Regaining A Place In Sun

Philadelphia, May 18—(P)—Blix Donnelly, little righthander who faded into the shadows after being the pitching hero of the 1944 World Series with the St. Louis Cardinals, is regaining his place in the sun with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Donnelly gave ample evidence of his return to prominence last night as he hurled the Phillies to a 7-1 win over the New York Giants, allowing only four scattered hits.

The victory was Donnelly's third of the 1948 season against two defeats. In his last 18 innings he has allowed one run and only seven hits. One of his defeats was a one-hit shutout administered by Harry (The Cat) Brecheen of the Cardinals.

Not content with his mound performance last night, Donnelly pounced out a fourth inning triple to right field that scored one of the Phillies seven runs.

Donnelly's present status is in contrast to his role in the 1944 series. Today, Blix is a starting hurler with the Phils. In 1944 with St. Louis he entered the series as a relief pitcher, a major league freshman with a record of two wins and one defeat.

The Cardinals were opposed in the series that year by the St. Louis Browns. In the first game Mort Cooper started for the Cardinals, allowing the Browns two hits and two runs in seven innings.

Donnelly came in to relieve in the final two innings, giving up no hits and no runs, but the Browns won the game, 2-1, despite a ninth inning rally by the Cards.

Blix came into his own in the second game, taking the mound again in a relief role. He pitched the last four innings of an 11-inning game won by the Cardinals 2-2, allowing two hits and receiving credit for the victory.

That game turned the tide for the Cards and they went on to win the series, four games to two.

PAYS TO FISH: Dr. Gale W. McGee of the University of Wyoming history department has a statistical answer to the old problem of keeping wives of wandering fishermen happy.

With the help of a little bookkeeping he convinces Mrs. McGee that his absences in the wilds have a dollars and cents value.

"Perhaps some other fishermen whose wives are 'weekend widows' through the summer might find the same system useful," McGee says.

He keeps tab of all his expenses on fishing and hunting trips. He also places a cash value on the trout or game bird he brings home. At the end of the year he strikes a balance between receipts and expenditures.

If the money value of the fish and birds exceeds his expenditures, Mrs. McGee receives a bill for the amount. This she ignores.

If the cost of the trips exceeds the value of the products of the hunt, McGee has to pay his wife the difference. She can buy a new hat with the money if she wants.

In last year's report McGee said he spent $38 on equipment and travel for 23 fishing trips. He swears he caught 474 trout which he valued at eight cents each, or a total of $38.92. For eight hunting trips he listed costs at $27.26. But McGee claimed a value of $28.50 on 33 ducks, 11 pheasants and one goose he got.

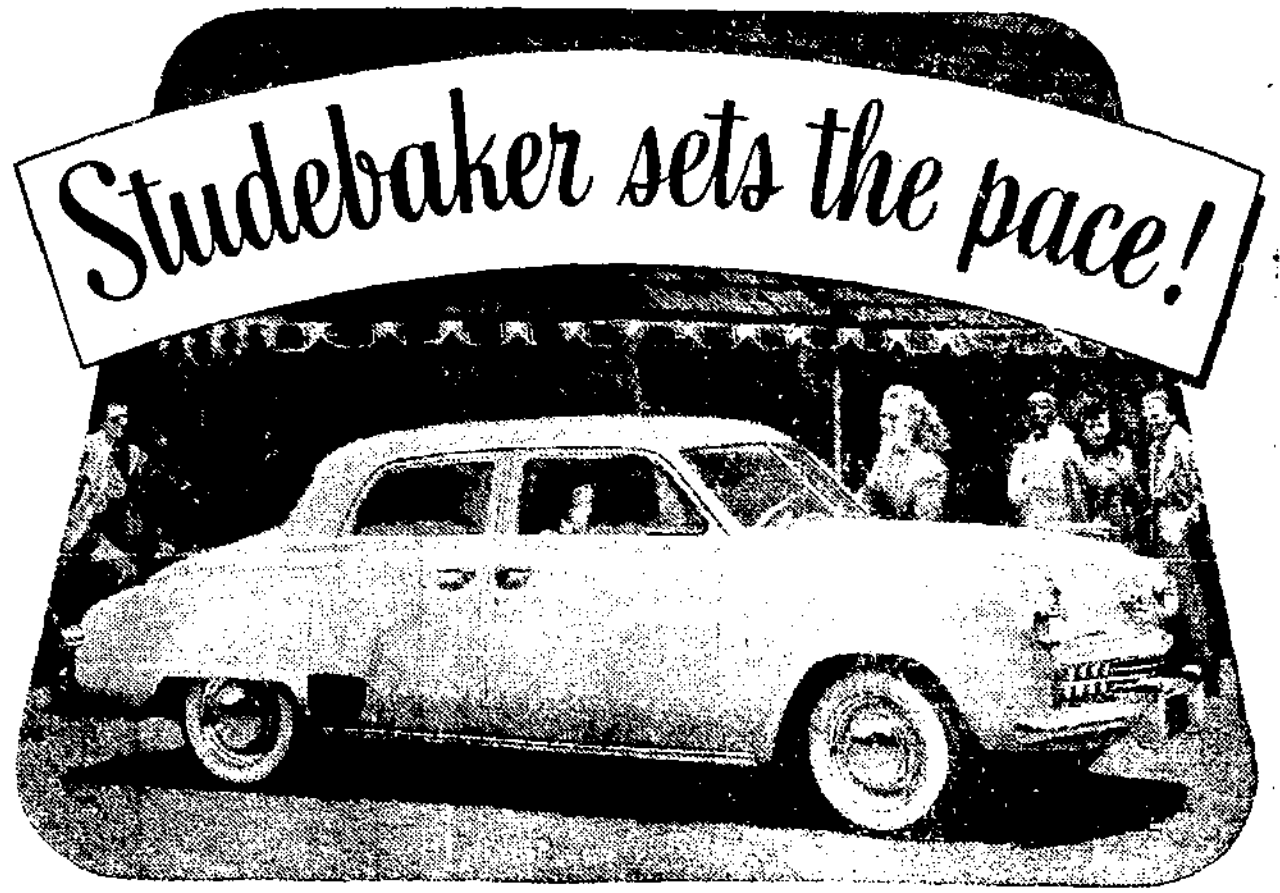

Mrs. McGee is still ignoring his tendered bill for $11.8.

In that job the 30-year-old city father has started his fight to get "every kid in Clairton more of what he needs."

Music Groups Of Youngsville Give Splendid Concerts At Conservatory

Youngsville, May 18—There was a good attendance for both evenings of music provided by music groups of the junior and senior high schools in the school auditorium on Thursday and Friday evening. Harvey Horn, music supervisor, was in charge.

The Thursday evening concert was opened by the senior mixed choir of over 30 voices, singing "The Night Has a Thousand Eyes" and "The Brook Forsaken" by Noble Cain; Row, Row, Row, by Swift; Praise Ye the Lord Almighty, 17th century hymn arranged by Olds; You Stole My Love, MacFarren; Bridal Chorus from The Rose Maiden, Cohen.

The junior choir gave the next grouping and, like the others, won the enthusiastic approval of the audience. These numbers were: Spring Breezes, Ribbons Dance, and De Glendy Burk, all Martin; arrangements by White; Beautiful Dreamer by Foster and Bortniansky's Cherubim Song, both arranged by Martin.

The large school orchestra appeared next in a varied offering. For the last three numbers, the orchestra was augmented by a group of first-year violin pupils of Arthur Briggs. These orchestral numbers were: Majestic Overture, Meditation, By the Brook, DeLamater; Danco of the Gnomes, Norman; Springtime Waltz, Saenger; Londonderry Air, Zamecnik; All in Step March, Leland; In the Garden, Waltz, Monroe.

On Friday evening the fine senior girls' choir sang the following: The Swan, Saint-Saens; Three Blind Mice (trio), Delores Potter, Velma Aryico and Norma Haight; Lift Thine Eyes, from Mendelssohn's Elijah; Old MacDonald Had a Farm, Howorth; The Holy City, Adams, solos by Marilyn Loomis and Pauline Whaley.

Youngsville school is proud of its large band, which closed the very pleasing program with playing of these numbers: Our Chief Maroon; Kerry Dance, Molloy; Waltz Fantasia—Under Tropical Skies; Olivadote; Wagnerian March, arranged by Yoder; Sweetest Story Ever Told, Tracy, sung as a soprano solo by Norma Haight, recent winner of high honor at the state forensic and music finals at Oil City, with band accompaniment; Novelty—Where, Oh Where, Has My Little Tune Gone, arranged by Horn; Marching Band, Kleffman; National Anthem.

Another Success

The Warren Dragons and Bradford Owls scored another big hit in their third annual band exchange concert, playing to a capacity house in Beatty school gym on Friday evening. School Music Booster Club members were on hand to help with the seating and certainly ferreted out every available inch of space that could be utilized. Unless additional bleachers were added, The Beatty gym acoustics being what they are—we'd like to hear one of these exchanges played outdoors or in a real auditorium some time. When the band let go in that Bobby Sox Suite, the sound came back from the rafters for a full five minutes. Joking aside, however, we're in thorough accord with the exchange plan. Both bands have a large membership and selection for the exchange provides a goal for the whole term's work. Rodney Schoch demonstrated in his half of the program a varied tempo, a concert band style, while Harry Summers carried through with a straight matching beat. Those who go on with their music will find this experience valuable as they are obliged to play under different conductors and in groupings with which they are less familiar.

The combined Dragon-Owl band numbered 7 basses, 16 trombones, 25 trumpets, 36 clarinets, 12 horns, 4 baritone and enough other instruments to provide a total instrumentation of nearly 150. Pieces chosen for the program were those always popular with band audiences, the Red Mill offering being particularly pleasing and having two good trumpet solos. Shirley McKenyon, cornetist from Bradford, got a big hand for her solo, "Willow Echoes," written by an old-time Sousa man, Frank Simons. The Stars and Stripes number brought all the brasses to their feet and in addition featured piccolo solos by Alice Hane, Bradford, and Elizabeth Dunham, Warren. Neil Swanson, popular local soloist, blew some lovely tones in the Cathedral excerpt.

WNAE carried the first half of the program through its regular facilities and the full concert on FM. LeRoy Schneick, program manager, served as announcer and Mike D'Angelo was at the amplifying controls. As an aside Mr. Schneick confided that the entire affair was as perfectly timed as if it had been rehearsed for weeks with a broadcast in mind and occupied 69 minutes, 30 seconds of the hour he had allotted it.

After the sign-off, Mr. Summers expressed his appreciation to the students and to all who had helped in any way to make the affair so successful.

FINE PROGRAM GIVEN IN AKELEY

A capacity audience gathered in the Akeley Grange Hall last week to welcome the Jamestown Chapter of Barbershop Quartet Singers. The chorus, all dressed in dark trousers, white shirts and maroon ties, opened the show with Hello Folks, the Old Song, Love is Like a Dream, and After Dark.

During the singing of After Dark, the master of ceremonies and a capable assistant, attired in a disreputable manner, appeared and proceeded to add intermittent periods of slap-stick comedy during the remainder of the program.

Quartet singing, a piano duet, and the inimitable Symphonic Four featuring the musical saw, slide whistle, sweet potato, and piano, provided splendid presentations of many old favorites and received repeated requests for encores. The L and L combine, an unusual magical show, baffled the audience with many illusions, much sleight of hand and downright black magic.

The chorus concluded the program with a medley ending with Coney Island Baby. It was the unanimous opinion of the audience that this was an unforgettable evening of really quality entertainment.

Dr. W. J. Prout, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Tidoute, read the double ring service before a mantel made beautiful with white lilies, dogwood and carnations, and lighted with white candles. The maid of honor and only attendant was the bride's sister, Alene, who wore a gown of blue tulle tulle, matching mitts and a crown of pink roses, and carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and blue feverfew.

Paul Linsen was best man for his brother and ushers were Donald King, brother of the bride, and James Covey, of Rochester, N. Y. The bride's mother chose a gray ensemble with matching accessories and Mrs. Linsen wore an aqua print. Each had a red rose corsage.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. James Byrnes, with Miss Grace Atkin and Miss Barbara Buckingham presiding at a table centered with lilies of the valley and white tapers. Miss Sue White served and Mrs. Edward Ellis, sister of the bridegroom, served the wedding cake.

Boston Braves, With Eleven Victories In 15 Starts Are Hottest Team In National

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
They may have about the wonderful St. Louis Cardinals pitching staff. They may gape in awe at the New York Giants' devastating power. They may admire and envy Brooklyn's depth with its youth and speed. The solid team in the National League, however, is the Boston Braves.

Boston is not in first place. The Cards hold that spot and the Giants are second. The Braves are third, but only because they got off to a miserable start. They dropped six of their first seven games.

Since then Boston has won 11 and lost four, the best record by far, in the circuit for the period. Billy Southworth's men haven't lost since May 9.

They opened a 14-game home stand tonight, boasting the league's No. 1 pitcher in Bill Voiselle, No. 2 batter in Tommy Holmes, the best fielding percentage of any club in the circuit and a four-game winning streak.

The Braves ended a successful road trip last night by crushing the Dodgers in Brooklyn, 12-8. It marked their fourth straight win over Brooklyn without a setback. It also gave them a record of eight victories in 11 road games.

No team in the league—and that includes the Cardinals—boasts three front line hurlers such as Boston's Johnny Sain, Warren Spahn and Voiselle. This trio has given up only three runs in Boston's last four games.

Another hot club, the Philadelphia Phils, defeated the New York Giants 7-1. The victory moved the Phils up to fourth place, only three percentage points behind the Braves.

Johnny Blatnik paced the Phils' 10-hit attack against Bobo Newsum and three successors. The rookie outfielder, picked up in the draft last fall, cracked three hits in four times up to wrest the league's batting leadership from Boston's Tommy Holmes with .428 to .435. He has hit safely in nine consecutive games.

Those were the only games scheduled in the majors. Today the Philadelphia Athletics, winners of 12 of their last 13 games, invade the west as they attempt to improve upon their game and a half lead in the American League race. They meet the runner-up Cleveland Indians.

Golf In a Stroke

Let Weight and Body Roll to Right, Make Shift at Start of Downswing

Sixth of a series written for Winged Foot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y. (NEA)—Perfecting the swing, remember what you have learned in the straight-wrist method and concentrate on the body, arms and feet.

These work as a unit. This is very important.

As you start the backswing, let your weight and body roll to the right.

If this is not done, all you have is your arms and club in the air, and no potential power for the downswing.

The correct position of the arms, club and the shoulder can be seen in the photograph at the left.

As you begin the downswing, let your weight move to the left in what we call a lateral shift. At this point do not do anything with your hands or club. Let them be pulled down naturally, by the forward motion of the hip.

The reason for this is that if the club is forced before the weight has been moved to the left side the face of the club will not hit the ball squarely.

After impact and in the follow through, all of the weight should be on the left foot with it pointing to the right. You will naturally finish your swing with your right foot on its toes.

Always make a high finish as illustrated in the photo at the right. This will prevent you from pulling the ball as a batter does in baseball, which is correct for him, but not for you. Never pull in golf.

Comparing the swing to that of a baseball player, a golfer is always trying for a hit right through the middle of the diamond and over second base.

And, of course, keep your eyes on the ball.

NEXT: Putting

In the Claude Harmon swing the important factors are to keep the wrists straight and the eyes on the ball.

National Forge Nine Opens Session Against Pleasantville

The National Forge baseball nine will blow the lid off the 1948 season tomorrow evening when the team battles Pleasantville on the Pleasantville diamond.

First home appearance for the Forge nine will be Memorial Day, May 30, with the crack Dormont Club of the Greater Pittsburgh League furnishing the opposition. Also booked for a home appearance at Wilder field in Irvine on June 2 are the nationally known Homestead Grays.

The Irvine clouters have held several practice drills, but a lot of work remains before the team is whipped into shape for the season.

Several promising newcomers from Warren along with a good sprinkling of the old standbys give promise of a better-than-average team.

Joe Frisina, capable shortstop, who is now moving up through the Chicago White Sox farm system, will be conspicuous by his absence. However, Emory Morrison is ready to step into Joe's shoes. Murphy, Steve Petrowski, Jonn Randinelli and Fred Gagliardi also are available for duty in the infield.

Out in the pastures will likely be Bill Unterreiner, Ang Frisina, and Nick Croelia with some good prospects in Bill Brown, who has Class D minor league experience. George Lucia of Warren and Ronnie Mason of Youngsville.

Manager Fred Gagliardi will have a veteran pitching combination in Caffrey and Hines, with Whittaker, Sealise, Kane and

Blix Donnelly Regaining A Place In Sun

Philadelphia, May 18—(AP)—Blix Donnelly, little righthander who faded into the shadows after being the pitching hero of the 1945 World Series with the St. Louis Cardinals, is regaining his place in the sun with the Philadelphia Phils.

Donnelly gave ample evidence of his return to prominence last night as he hurled the Phils to a 7-1 win over the New York Giants, allowing only four scattered hits.

The victory was Donnelly's third of the 1948 season against two defeats. In his last 18 innings he has allowed one run and only seven hits. One of his defeats was a one-hit shutout administered by Harry (The Cat) Brecheen of the Cardinals.

Not content with his mound performance last night, Donnelly pounded out a fourth inning triple to right field that scored one of the Phils seven runs.

Donnelly's present status is in contrast to his role in the 1944 series. Today, Blix is a starting hurler with the Phils. In 1944 with St. Louis he entered the series as a relief pitcher, a major league freshman with a record of two wins and one defeat.

The Cardinals were opposed in the series that year by the St. Louis Browns. In the first game, Lou Cooper started for the Cardinals, allowing the Browns two hits and two runs in seven innings.

Donnelly came in to relieve in the final two innings, giving up no hits and no runs, but the Browns won the game, 2-1, despite a ninth inning rally by the Cards.

Blix came into his own in the second game, taking the mound again in a relief role. He pitched the last four innings of an 11-inning game won by the Cardinals 3-2, allowing two hits and receiving credit for the victory.

That game turned the tide for the Cards and they went on to win the series, four games to two.

gram now, but I want to make it even better."

Baird said two other immediate projects are to rebuild a dance pavilion which burned down five years ago and make swimming pool passes good on all days of the week.

BOBBING in SPORTS

by BOB MOORHEAD

PAYS TO RISH: Dr. Gale W. McGee of the University of Wyoming history department has a statistical answer to the old problem of keeping wives of wandering fishermen happy.

"With the help of a little book-keeping he convinces Mrs. McGee that his absences in the wilds have a dollars and cents value.

"Perhaps some other fishermen whose wives are 'weekend widows' through the summer might find the same system useful," McGee says.

He keeps tab of all his expenses on fishing and hunting trips. He also places a cash value on the trout or game birds he brings home. At the end of the year he strikes a balance between receipts and expenditures.

If the money value of the fish and birds exceeds his expenditures, Mrs. McGee receives a bill for the amount. This she ignores.

If the cost of the trips exceeds the value of the products of the hunt, McGee has to pay his wife the difference. She can buy a new hat with the money if she wants.

In last year's report McGee said he spent $38 on equipment and travel for 23 fishing trips. He swears he caught 474 trout which he valued at eight cents each, or a total of $37.92. For eight hunting trips he listed costs at $27.28. But McGee claimed a value of $25.50 on 35 ducks, 11 pheasants and one goose he got.

Mrs. McGee is still ignoring his tendered bill for $11.6.

RING TO ROSTRUM: Bob Baird, former intercollegiate boxing champion, is still fighting—but he no longer uses his fists.

Baird, who won the eastern 145-pound title as a senior at Penn State in 1942, is a newly-elected councilman and head of the department of parks and recreation in Clifton, Pa.

In that job the 30-year-old city father has started his fight to get "every kid in Clifton more of what he needs."

"When I was a youngster in Clifton," Baird says, "we didn't even have a ball team or the makings of one. They have a good pro-

Boyle Writes About a Brush That Brought About Fortune

By HAL BOYLE
New York (AP)—"If you push enough doorbells, you'll sell enough brushes."

That is the simple sales formula on which Alfred C. Fuller, the original Fuller brush man, has built a gigantic house-to-house business. Fuller, now 63, started in the basement of his sister-in-law's house in 1903. He made the brushes on a $15 second-hand machine in the afternoon and evening and peddled them the next morning.

He doesn't have to push doorbells himself anymore. He's so wealthy he doesn't even have to answer the door himself when a Fuller brush man rings his doorbell to try to sell him a brush.

But this year some 7,000 Fuller brush men, across the nation will push approximately 40,750,000 doorbells to sell housewives nearly $50,000,000 worth of brushes.

Beverly McIntyre In Senior Recital

The first senior piano recital on the Warren Conservatory of Music Spring calendar was presented Monday evening by Beverly McIntyre, of Youngsville, with Jackie Smith, mezzo-soprano, assisting. Miss McIntyre played her first group of three pieces with a beautiful style and expression, "The Music Box" number by Bond showing real artistry and a lovely tone. Seldom does one hear from a student such clean cut runs and rapid technique as was displayed in the Chopin Fantasia Impromptu and the MacDowell Czardas which comprised her second group. The Last Concerto in E Flat Minor, chosen to conclude the program, was played with a splendid interpretation. Climaxes were brought out with a superb power and not the slightest harshness of tone. Miss Lillian Swanson, her former teacher, played orchestral parts at the second piano.

Miss Smith has a very clear, high soprano voice and her work has shown excellent progress during the term. She was at her best in the number "I Hear You Calling Me" by Marshall and "The Spirit Flower" by Campbell-Tipton.

The recital attracted a large audience from Warren and surrounding towns.

"Not Since the 1930's

---Values Like These"!

Remember the Editorial Advertisement announcing our 52nd Anniversary Sale?

It appeared just six days ago, on Wednesday, May 12. It seems much longer.

It seems much longer because so much has happened in the meantime. Less than five selling days have elapsed actually, but they have been dramatic, and, indeed, epoch-making in the history of this fine 52-year-old store. At the beginning of the Sale we set ourselves a daily quota—a sales figure we HOPED to meet. What are the results?

WE HAVE EXCEEDED THAT QUOTA BY MORE THAN 25%. WE HAVE EXCEEDED LAST YEAR'S SALES FOR THE SAME PERIOD BY 50%!

This is the most successful Anniversary Sale in our 52 years of merchandising history. Again we ask ourselves—WHY? And we know the answer.

In that opening announcement, remember, we said: "Not since the 1930's have you seen values like these." That was the literal truth—and that is the reason for the amazing results achieved. Every department, every floor, every counter, is crammed with the greatest values "since the 1930's." You can see for yourself the moment you step into the store.

Now, the Anniversary Sale is not over! There are four selling days still to come. In a sense it's just the beginning, for here's what we've done:

By wire, by phone, we've contacted the makers of the items that sold out during the first day or two. They've rushed new supplies to us for these last four days. So, if you were disappointed in getting your share of that sell-out merchandise, try again—tomorrow.

Further, we've gone through the store item by item. We have selected scores of NEW items, items not before Sale-presented. We've priced those items so that they, too, are the greatest values "since the 1930's." We're putting them on sale for the first time tomorrow.

Four more days—four more golden opportunities—for you!

Remember, the Anniversary Sale comes but once a year—and Lilac Time is nearing its end!

52nd Year Selling Merchandise That Won't Come Back—To Customers that Will

MANAGING DIRECTOR

Anti-Communist Bill

(Editor's Note: This is the first of two stories on the anti-Communist bill which comes up soon for a vote in congress.)

By JAMES MARLOW Washington.—(A)—The house, this week or next, expects to pass a bill aimed at crippling, if not destroying, the Communist party here.

The bill has plenty of opponents. For example: Some newspaper editorial writers, the CIO and the Civil Liberties Union. The CIO says:

Labor unions are not mentioned in the bill. But enemies of it say a labor union some time might be pulled into its net because of the bill's wording.

outlawing a political party, even the Communist party.

Some of the Republican candidates for president are split on this. Governor Thomas E. Dewey is against outlawing a political party. So is Senator Robert A. Taft. Harold E. Stassen is definitely for outlawing the Communist party.

The House Un-American Activities committee says the American Communist Party:

1. Is part of a world-wide Communist conspiracy and is controlled by the Russian Communist party.

ing the problem involved in outlawing the Communist party, suppose this is true:

Suppose the American Communist party, if allowed to enjoy full American civil liberties, tries to come to power and, once there, crushes civil liberties and outlaws all other political parties.

Should such a party be allowed full civil liberties which everyone else is supposed to have in this country, or should it be crushed now to prevent its ever having a chance to set up a dictatorship here?

But if the American government now, for any reason, can deprive any group of Americans of their civil liberties, may the time not come when the same government will deprive all citizens of those liberties?

Recognizing that problem, the committee says:

"We cannot consistently criticize the Communist governments of Europe for suppressing opposition political parties if we resort to the same totalitarian methods here."

But, the committee argues, if the American Communist party cuts its ties with Russia and drops its secret, there's no reason why it can't have the same liberties as other political parties. So the restrictions placed on American Communists, under the committee bill, are based on this assumption:

"That the American Communist party is part of an international Communist plot to overthrow the government and must be hamstrung although not outlawed."

Beverly McIntyre In Senior Recital

The first senior piano recital on the Warren Conservatory of Music spring calendar was presented Monday evening by Beverly McIntyre, of Youngsville, with Jackie Smith, mezzo-soprano, assisting.

Miss McIntyre played her first group of three pieces with a beautiful style and expression. "The Music Box" number by Bond showing real artistry and a lovely tone. Seldom does one hear from a student such clean cut runs and rapid technique as was displayed in the Chopin Fantasia Impromptu and the MacDowell Czardas which comprised her second group. The Liszt Concerto in E Flat Major, chosen to conclude the program, was played with a splendid interpretation. Climaxes were brought out with a superb power and not the slightest harshness of tone. Miss Lillian Swanson, her former teacher, played orchestral parts at the second piano.

Miss Smith has a very clear, high soprano voice and her work has shown excellent progress during the term. She was at her best in the number "I Hear You Calling Me" by Marshall and "The Spirit Flower" by Campbell-Tipton.

The recital attracted a large audience from Warren and surrounding towns.

---Values Like These"!

Remember the Editorial Advertisement announcing our 52nd Anniversary Sale?

It appeared just six days ago, on Wednesday, May 12. It seems much longer.

It seems much longer because so much has happened in the meantime. Less than five selling days have elapsed actually, but they have been dramatic, and, indeed, epoch-making in the history of this fine 52-year-old store. At the beginning of the Sale we set ourselves a daily quota—a sales figure we HOPED to meet. What are the results?

WE HAVE EXCEEDED THAT QUOTA BY MORE THAN 25%. WE HAVE EXCEEDED LAST YEAR'S SALES FOR THE SAME PERIOD BY 50%!

This is the most successful Anniversary Sale in our 52 years of merchandising history. Again we ask ourselves—WHY? And we know the answer.

In that opening announcement, remember, we said: "Not since the 1930's have you seen values like these." That was the literal truth—and that is the reason for the amazing results achieved. Every department, every floor, every counter, is crammed with the greatest values "since the 1930's." You can see for yourself the moment you step into the store.

Now, the Anniversary Sale is not over! There are four selling days still to come. In a sense it's just the beginning, for here's what we've done:

By wire, by phone, we've contacted the makers of the items that sold out during the first day or two. They've rushed new supplies to us for these last four days. So, if you were disappointed in getting your share of that sell-out merchandise, try again—tomorrow.

Further, we've gone through the store item by item. We have selected scores of NEW items, items not before Sale-presented. We've priced those items so that they, too, are the greatest values "since the 1930's." We're putting them on sale for the first time tomorrow.

Four more days—four more golden opportunities—for you!

Remember, the Anniversary Sale comes but once a year—and Lilac Time is nearing its end!

Anti-Communist Bill

(Editor's Note: This is the first of two stories on the anti-Communist bill which comes up soon for a vote in congress.)

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington—(AP)—The house, this week or next, expects to pass a bill aimed at crippling, if not destroying, the Communist party here.

The bill has plenty of opponents. For example: Some newspaper editorial writers, the CIO and the Civil Liberties Union. The CIO says:

Labor unions are not mentioned in the bill. But enemies of it say a labor union some time might be pulled into its net because of the bill's wording.

The American Civil Liberties Union calls the bill "obnoxious" and, like the CIO, says it would violate civil rights.

In spite of the vigorous anti-Communist feeling in this country, there is also plenty of worry about outlawing a political party, even the Communist party.

Some of the Republican candidates for president are split on this. Governor Thomas E. Dewey is against outlawing a political party. So is Senator Robert A. Taft. Harold E. Stassen is definitely for outlawing the Communist party.

The house Un-American Activities committee says the American Communist Party:

1. Is part of a world-wide Communist conspiracy and is controlled by the Russian Communist party.

2. Advocates the "overthrow of our government by force and violence."

So far, that's what the committee says. It would have to prove those charges in court if the bill became law. So far the supreme court has not handed down a decision that would support the committee charges.

But, for the sake of understanding the problem involved in outlawing the Communist party, suppose this is true:

Suppose the American Communist party, if allowed to enjoy full American civil liberties, tries to come to power and, once there, crushes civil liberties and outlaws all other political parties.

Should such a party be allowed full civil liberties which everyone else is supposed to have in this country; or should it be crushed now to prevent its ever having a chance to set up a dictatorship here?

But if the American government now, for any reason, can deprive any group of Americans of their civil liberties, may the time not come when the same government will deprive all citizens of those liberties?

Recognizing that problem, the committee says:

"We cannot consistently criticize the Communist governments of Europe for suppressing opposition political parties if we resort to the same totalitarian methods here."

But, the committee argues, if the American Communist party cuts its ties with Russia and drops secrecy, there's no reason why it can't have the same liberties as other political parties.

So the restrictions placed on American Communists, under the committee bill, are based on this assumption:

That the American Communist party is part of an international Communist plot to overthrow our government and must be hamstrung although not outlawed.
